ANGIE LANGLEY ANNOUNCES REBRAND OF CONSULTING FIRM

CLERMONT (Jan. 18, 2021) – Angie Langley, a 20-year veteran in the Central Florida business development and government relations scene, announced the rebranding of her company, signaling a new name, new website and new focus. The firm is now called Langley Consulting Group. Langley, the CEO and founder, said the company will continue to operate out of its South Lake headquarters.

“For several months, I have been reorganizing my company so that I can expand my services while still focusing on exceptional results,” Langley said. “The rebrand is the culmination of those efforts.”

Langley has long been associated with some of the largest and most successful land development projects in south Lake County and beyond. She has deep roots in the area and is known as an expert in land use, business development and government relations.

Langley has helped steer close to $1 billion in Central Florida development and assisted in bringing more than $300 million in new business throughout the Southeast. She has advocated and lobbied for clients at all bureaucratic levels and is a much sought-after consultant in municipal, state and federal campaigns.

Some have referred to Langley Consulting as the “express lane” for clients seeking an experienced partner in navigating the often-complex government bureaucracy surrounding land and business development in Florida. From the boardroom to the Capital Beltway, Langley gives clients a clear advantage with her insider knowledge and connections.

Daryl Carter, president of Maury I. Carter & Associates said, “Angie’s hard work, standing in the community, relationships, attention to detail and keen mind to develop strategies were critical to our success.”

A lifelong Central Florida resident, Langley attended the University of Central Florida before launching her successful consulting business. In addition to advocating and lobbying for clients at all stages of development and all levels of government, Langley provides introductions to elected officials and to strategic partners. She helps identify significant business opportunities and provides a full range of marketing and public relations services, including crisis communications and reputation management.
